

Imagine you are new to the company. Fill out this story to capture nuances that make your culture unique.

I'm so _____ to join _____.

[emotion experienced by new employee]

[company name]

walked into the _____ and the first thing I saw was

[what you call an office]

_____.

[something you might only see at your company]

_____ because _____.

[company name]

[why]

My manager has been showing me the ropes. She says the people who get ahead here are _____, _____, and

[adjective]

[adjective]

_____, but watch out for the _____ people

[adjective]

[adjective]

- they're career trouble. She said you can tell a real _____ by the way they run a meeting. Those

[what you call someone who works at your company]

meetings are run like a

_____.

[metaphor for what your meetings are like]

_____.

[explanation of the metaphor]

Culture MadLibs

Yesterday I got lost trying to find the bathroom. Embarrassing! The CEO walked by and _____.

[what your CEO would do if they saw someone wandering in the hall]

When _____ happened, I thought it was a little [something your company is known for doing differently]

strange, but people tell me it's very typical here. At _____ we all

[time when you might gather for a social activity]

got together to _____.

[social activity people might do at your company]

_____ gathering when

[company name]

_____. I think if I stay here it will be

[story of a legendary thing that really happened]

because of the _____, but if I would go it's [best thing about working for company]

because _____.

[most common reason people leave company]

like the guy I sit next to me said: the first rule is

_____, but if you really want to

[thing everyone talks about being important]

succeed here, remember

_____.

[unspoken rule that everyone seems to live by]